meeting in Baltimore last night, Col. W. A. Stewart urged that the democratic party had always been a friend of the workingman. In the earlier stages of the country's history a property qualification was considered necessary to entitle a man to vote. A man voted one year who was taxed for a mule worth $100. The next year he could not vote, because the mule had died. Now which had voted, the mule or the man? [Laughtor and applause] The democratic party had changed this. As late as 1832 the citizens of Baltimore could not vote for mayor or Second Baltimore could not vote for mayor or Second Branch of the City Council. They were only allowed to elect a First Branch. This too, was changed by the democratic party, which had ever been the friend of the people, and had ever granted to the poor man his rights (Applause.) The principle of the democratic party was "that the blessings of government, like the dews of heaven, should fall alike upon the rich and the poor." [Cheers and applause.]
